

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a method, a document output system, and a computer program for preparation of a resource-based document data stream for output on an output device, the document data stream is transferred from a first computer to a second computer. The document data stream comprises document data that are associated with an output font. In the course of the document data stream preparation, the output font is converted into a target font, and the conversion is controlled by at least one font conversion table that is stored in a resource file.

CH1\4078519.1